Hulbert Forfeits New York Office

President of New York Board of Aldermen Automatically Ceased to Function When He Accepted State Park Commissionership—Dispute Governor's Power to Fill Vacancy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 9.—Action by Governor Smith was awaited expectantly today by city hall officials, following the decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer that Murray Hulbert, president of the New York city board of aldermen had automatically forfeited his position by accepting Governor Smith's appointment as a member of the Finger Lakes Park Commission.

Mayor Hyman said he hoped Governor Smith, if he had the power, would appoint Hulbert to succeed himself.

In the corporation counsel's office it was said the governor had the power in the event of an existing vacancy to appoint a president of the board of aldermen in New York city to serve until the next election in November.

This viewpoint was disputed in other quarters, where it was declared the governor did not have the necessary appointive power and that William T. Collins, vice chairman of the board of aldermen, succeeded automatically to the position of president.

Another interpretation of the situation by some of the aldermanic body was that Hulbert's successor could be chosen only by appointment or election and that it is within the province of Governor Smith's power to call a special election.

The ruling of the court, announced last night, declared the office of aldermanic president vacant since April 9 last, when Hulbert accepted his appointment as member of the Finger Lakes Park Commission. The latter position carries no pay with it.

Expect Wales Will Stay a Bachelor

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Jan. 9.—Will the Prince of Wales meet his matrimonial fate during the visit to the Argentine next summer? This question is being asked all over Great Britain.

Two important facts give rise to the query. The first is that the Prince is now regarded everywhere in England as a confirmed bachelor. "Why should I not be the first unmarried King of Britain?" is the remark that he is said to have made frequently to his intimate friends. The second is that never before has an heir to the throne attained the age of thirty and remained single.

"Does he want to become King?" is the question that English society people are continually asking. "Would he rather renounce his rights and allow the Duke of York to succeed?" is the interrogation which usually follows.

Few men have travelled as much as Edward Prince of Wales. He has met the beauties of Britain, the United States, the British Colonies and Europe. And never once has his name been seriously linked with that of any woman. Is his bachelorhood confirmed or is it that he has never chanced to meet the one woman who matters?

Now he will set out to find a new type of woman confronting him. Argentine girls are admittedly among the prettiest in the world. Many of them are extraordinarily wealthy, and some of ancient lineage. Some of them are of the old-fashioned British descent. In England itself they have always made a triumphal progress wherever they have gone.

Will the Prince of Wales "fall for" the charm of one of these? Britain is asking that question today and it is certain that such an alliance, bringing the British Empire and the great continent of South America together, would meet with no opposition in this country.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 9.—Mrs. Mary Ann Rudd, 82, sister of John D. Rockefeller, was dead today at the home of her son, Frank H. Rudd. Death ended an illness of nearly 15 years. Summit Water Pure

The Sanitary water commission has just received a report of the village water, a test having been made a few days ago by an expert town chemist. The report says the water is of excellent quality, pure and free from bacteria. The chlorine treatment given the water, as required now by the state health law, is responsible sometimes for a peculiar taste. This law applies throughout the state.

Men Suffer While Congress Delays

Belated Justice Asked by Disabled World War Veterans, Some of Whom Have Been Produced as "Examples" of Nation's Forgetfulness.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 9.—A thousand and sixteen disabled World War veterans today hammered on the doors of congress for belated justice.

The battalion of cripples with their hundreds of war decorations from all the Allied governments but little money for food or medicine, sent a delegation to plead for enactment of the Bursum bill granting regular retirement pay to disabled emergency army officers.

All other officers who served in the World War have long since been granted this compensation as a reward for their wounds. The handful who volunteered, received emergency commissions, served through the war and then were dropped from the rolls.

As a result of the plea, Senator Bursum, Republican of New Mexico, announced he would demand consideration of the relief bill in the senate at the "first opportunity." He predicted its enactment at this session of congress as the bill passed the senate two years ago but failed in the house through a legislative jam.

Of the thousand and sixteen veterans benefited by the measure, all served in France and all fell from wounds or disease contracted in the line of duty. Since the bill first came before congress in 1920 their lines have been decimated by death. Two hundred of the eligibles died while congress delayed and eighteen died since congress reopened in December. Of the number four were included who came before congress a year ago as "witnesses" and "examples" of their nation's forgetfulness.

Under existing conditions, the survivors—most of them middle men—must support families on the trifling allowances received from the veterans' bureau. All other disabled officers have regular retirement pay. The total cost of the bill, Bursum said, would be about $600,000 a year, with the amount decreased annually because of deaths. This would give a wounded officer a pension of from $75 to $100 a month.

DIRIGIBLE FLOATING OVER NEW YORK CITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 9.—A gleam in the warm sunshine of a day almost spring-like, the great dirigible Los Angeles floated lazily above New York city this afternoon. The Los Angeles, which is making the first of a series of short test flights, is the dirigible which crossed the Atlantic as the German-built air liner ZR-3. Great crowds gathered in the streets as the ship circled over part of Long Island and then over Brooklyn. She was expected to return to Lakehurst, whence she took off this morning, late this afternoon or evening.

BUS SERVICE AIDS NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS OF CITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The attendance of Kingston young folks at the New Paltz Normal School is steadily increasing in numbers each year. This year there are sixteen from this city attending the school. In former years it was necessary for pupils to remain in New Paltz throughout the week, returning home on week ends. Due to the excellent bus service of the Kingston-New Paltz Line, operated by Von Gonsie Brothers of Tillson, pupils from Kingston commute daily to and from the normal school.

Slayers' Lawyers To Get $130,000

Committee of Chicago Bar Association Agrees Such Sum Is Warranted by Responsibility of the Case.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 9.—To defend Richard A. Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., $130,000.

This is the bill, bearing the official stamp of approval of the Chicago Bar Association, which was ready today for presentation to the families of the youthful slayers of Bobby Franks.

The amount, at one time reported fixed at $150,000, was definitely decided upon at a conference of Defense Attorneys Clarence Darrow, Walter and Benjamin Bachrach and a Bar Association commission.

"The responsibility of the case, the questions involved and the sentence—life and 99 years—warrant such a price," the Bar Association statement reads.

It was reported today Darrow was to receive the lion's share, possibly as high as $100,000.

Gas Execution Reduces Crime

Nevada's Introduction of Lethal Gas to Punish Murder Followed by Absence of Killings Punishable by Death.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Jan. 9.—Eleven months ago today a fear-crazed man was dragged across the sun baked stones of the Nevada state prison, tied to a chair in an air tight room and put to death while official state witnesses gazed on the first lethal gas execution in history.

Since that murky morning there hasn't been a "first degree" murder in Nevada, Governor J. G. Sougham told International News Service today.

"Since that man, Gee Jon, a hired Chinese killer from San Francisco, was put to death by gas, there hasn't been a murder punishable by death, meaning a murder other than committed in the heat of frenzy, in the whole state of Nevada," said Governor Sougham.

"To be hanged or shot to death is not so bad, but a Chinese fears a gas death, because he thinks, because of his religion, it will keep him from going to heaven."

The Nevada Legislature meets in 11 days, the chief executive said, but he predicted no effort would be made to repeal the lethal gas execution law.

"The law is considered an excellent one in Nevada and it looks as though it is on our statute books to stay," the governor said.

Judge Goes On Search For Rum

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—Magistrate Edward P. Carney, bent on obtaining proof that liquor was being drunk at the Ritz-Carlton, invaded the grill room of that hostelry early today and caused a turmoil among fashionably gownned women and men in evening dress.

The magistrate said he snatched from a table around which were seated about 20 persons a quart bottle which he charged contained whiskey and three or four tumblers which contained "old fashioned" ginger ale high balls.

Edward C. Pearce, 20, of Paoli, was the only one arrested on Carney's orders. He was charged with disorderly conduct and afterwards released on a copy of the charge. After the raid the magistrate said: "If the police pick up small places and prevent dancing I want them to go after the big ones."

Want Hanging Strictly Private

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Griffin, Ga., Jan. 9.—Attorneys for Gervis Bloodworth and Willie Jones, confessed slayers of H. W. Underwood, near Butler, Ga., more than a year ago, who were to have been hanged at Butler, today, resorted to an injunction to save their clients from death. A temporary restraining order preventing carrying out of the death sentence was granted here today by Judge W. E. H. Seay.

Georgia law provides that a hanging shall take place in privacy. Attorneys said the gallows had been built in front of the jail and that a board fence surrounding it does not exclude the public view.

Jack Robins and Matty Deegan to Run Ball Team

Judge Schirick Will Not Have Charge of Colonials Coming Season, and Fair Ground Association Will Put Team in Field—Season Starts About May 1.

Jack Robins and Matty Deegan, members of the champion Kingston Colonials, will have charge of the Colonials the coming season, and it is expected that the team will be as fast, or faster, than in previous seasons. Judge Harry E. Schirick is out of baseball. That fact he announced last fall at the close of the baseball season here.

The retirement of Judge Schirick from active management of the Kingston Colonials has led to the selection of Robins and Deegan to manage the club the coming season. The club will be backed financially by the Kingston Fair Ground Association, who are to put the team in the field.

All games will be played on the Fair Grounds as usual. These are the plans that have so far been formulated for the formation of a team to represent Kingston the coming season, and it is not expected that there will be any material change in the plans.

Both Robins and Deegan are not only good baseball players but have the faculty of getting the best out of the players under them.

It is too early in the year to announce the lineup of the team or the booking of games here. It is expected, however, that the season will likely open about the first of May.

Saved Pay Check But Lost Her Life

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Sodus Point, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Although she saved her husband's $85 pay check, for which she turned back and braved flames in her burning house, Mrs. Edward Shultz paid for it with her life. She died last night in Williamson hospital a few hours after being seriously burned in her dash for the money.

Mrs. Shultz and a woman companion were alone in the house when a passerby warned them the building was afire. The flames made quick headway and soon the whole house was burning. Mrs. Shultz remembered she had left the money upstairs and insisted on dashing into the house despite attempts to prevent her.

She collapsed from burns on her way out and was rescued by a neighbor.

State Has Funds To Pay Bonus

No Additional Appropriations Needed to Pay Next of Kin of Every New York State Veteran Killed in World War.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9.—New York state will be able to pay a bonus to the next of kin of every veteran from this state killed in the World War out of the $45,000,000 bond issue approved by the voters. It was revealed at the capitol today.

At first it was believed an additional appropriation would have to be made for this purpose.

Governor Alfred E. Smith and the Republican leaders of the legislature are in accord on the payment of a bonus to the relatives of deceased veterans.

The bonus bill will be at the rate of $10 for each month the veteran served, the total not to exceed $150. Adjutant General Edward J. Westcott, chairman of the bonus commission, has informed the governor and the legislative leaders that he is certain there will be enough money left from the original bond issue of $45,000,000 to pay the proposed bonus to the next of kin of deceased veterans. General Westcott figures there will be upwards of $3,600,000 left on March 1, after all pending bonus claims have been paid.

A bill amending the bonus law of last year, providing for a bonus for the next of kin out of the original bond issue, will be introduced in the legislature next week. The leaders it was said have agreed to rush the measure through to final passage.

Bridge Measure First Offered

To New Legislature at Albany—Bill Provides for Reimbursement to Ulster and Dutchess Counties for Bridge Approach Expenses.

The amendment to the Poughkeepsie bridge bill, putting the structure under the highway department and providing for reimbursement of Dutchess and Ulster counties for bridge approach expenses, was the first bill offered in the new legislature at Albany Wednesday.

Senator J. Griswold Webb had the distinction of introducing the amendment, which is the first measure to be introduced at the 1925 session of the legislature.

It is expected that the amendment will be approved by the legislature without opposition. The cost of approaches on Dutchess county, it is estimated, might reach $150,000, and that for Ulster approximately $20,000.

Orders Probe of Fair Management

State Fair Commission Affairs Declared by Lieutenant Governor Lowman to Be in a "Mess"—Governor Orders Investigation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., Jan. 9.—A revealing investigation into charges made by Lieutenant Governor Seymour Lowman that the financial affairs of the state fair commission are "in a mess" was ordered today by Governor Alfred E. Smith in a letter to Joseph H. Wilson, state research director.

Wilson, as research director, has power to subpoena witnesses and administer oaths. In conducting the investigation into the financial affairs of the fair commission he will be acting in many respects as a Moreland Act commissioner.

Research Director Wilson announced he would hold the investigation in Syracuse because the commission's books are kept in that city. "I am glad to hear it," said Lieutenant Governor Lowman when told the governor had ordered an investigation of the fair commission.

"I don't charge the commission with moral turpitude but I do think it has been lax in the handling of its finances," he added.

The probe ordered by the governor will probably be launched next week, Wilson said, after receiving the request from the executive.

Lieutenant Governor Lowman charged that despite the fact that about $1,000,000 was appropriated in the last two years for the fair, the commission ends the present fair with a deficit of nearly $100,000.

He also stated that two of the fair commissioners were supplied with automobiles out of the state fair funds despite the fact that the fair commissioners are not specified in the law which states what state officials shall have cars paid for and maintained by the state.

The governor's letter to Wilson follows: "The morning newspapers carry an account of a meeting of the state fair commission held at the capitol yesterday. Lieutenant Governor Lowman is quoted as saying in relation to the state fair:

"The financial condition is a mess, about $1,000,000 has been appropriated for the fair, within the past two years by the state. The fair commission, has in addition the entire receipts such as gate money which have been enormous. The year ends with a deficit of nearly $100,000."

"Investigate this matter thoroughly and at once. My attention has not been called to the matter in any way except through the public press. I am therefore keen to have all the facts at the earliest possible moment."

Lieutenant Governor Lowman announced today that he would ask State Comptroller Murphy to go over the books of the fair commission.

"The fair commission," said the Lowman statement, "is unlike other state institutions in that it receives and pays out money without turning it in to the state treasury. This is wrong and is a clear temptation to graft as there is no proper audit by the state comptroller."

The law specifies what state officials shall have automobiles paid for and maintained by the state. The state fair commissioners are not named in the act. Notwithstanding this fact two of the commissioners have been supplied with cars out of fair funds. The oil, gasoline and repair bills to keep these high powered cars going have been sufficient to move an army transport and they are still coming in."

The statement concluded with the declaration that the state should receive the fee "for at least every third admission to the fair."

By virtue of his office, Lieutenant Governor Lowman succeeds former Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn as chairman of the commission.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Jan. 8.—Official board of the M. E. Church held its regular business meeting Monday evening at the home of Clarence J. Elting. Automobiles were used to convey the members and a large delegation was present. There was plenty of business at the commencement of the new year. New possibilities and opportunities command the serious thought and attention of members of the board. Everything is moving on nicely. After routine business the men's social was earnestly taken up, and Mrs. Elting knew well that after so much talking as had taken place these officials were hungry so they were served with a variety of sandwiches, hot coffee, brick ice cream and delicious cake, for which they expressed their gratitude. Near midnight the "honking of horns" was heard and all left the Elting home with pleasant thoughts of the meeting and best wishes for the hospitable entertainers.

A NEW LEADER
AMONG AMERICAN EIGHTS

The new Hupmobile Eight possesses all the sound qualities of endurance and reliability which have made Hupmobile famous the world over.

It possesses all the super-abilities of the eight-cylinder principle, and adds to them superiorities of its own which unquestionably single it out as a new leader among American eights.

The Hupmobile Eight brings within reach of the average American family, for the first time, every eight-cylinder quality and advantage for which buyers in the past willingly paid hundreds of dollars more.

Only Hupmobile itself could build such an eight, at a price which for the first time brings eight-cylinder motoring to thousands who heretofore have enjoyed less than the superlative in motor car performance.

For Hupmobile now incorporates in its Eight a degree of economy and performing stability never before associated with the eight as a type.

The Hupmobile Eight outdistances all other eights and all superior sixes—

In production of power per cubic inch of piston displacement;

In smoothness so complete that not even a murmur of "roughness" can be detected in the engine's entire power and speed range;

In compactness for handling and parking combined with roominess for riding comfort;

In a fine and better balanced combination of speed, lugging power and rapid acceleration;

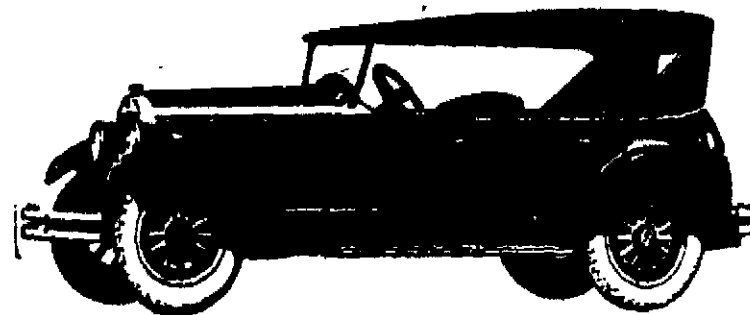

In gasoline economy;

In beauty of design, finish and equipment;

In braking control.

The advent of the Hupmobile Eight is a major event in motor car history. A ride in this car—a drive behind the wheel—an understanding of the way it is engineered and built—will quickly convince you of that.

Dealers' Plates and Service Cars

City General's Office Gives Opinion That Such Plates Cannot Be Used on Service Cars—Motor Vehicle Commissioner Harnett Rules Accordingly.

Kingston, Jan. 9.—Number plates issued to manufacturers and dealers are used by them only upon motor vehicles actually manufactured or assembled in and not upon vehicles used to transport and conduct such businesses, said Commissioner Harnett in a decision rendered January 12. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles A. Harnett said today.

The attorney general's office, upon request of Commissioner Harnett, has rendered an opinion on the scope of the law, in which they interpret it to mean that "such number plates are not to be used upon a dealer's service car even though he is using it to furnish free repair service on cars which he has sold under an agreement to furnish free repair service for a certain time."

The opinion by the attorney general and the order given by Commissioner Harnett to inspectors in his bureau to enforce the section has a widespread effect on dealers throughout the state. It necessitates a radical change in the practice of selling service cars with dealers' plates in that it excludes every use of such plates except for the purposes specifically stated in the statute.

Briefly, the attorney general answers in the negative the three important points of information made Commissioner Harnett. The questions submitted are:

1. "If a dealer in motor vehicles issues upon the sale of every vehicle that he will furnish repair service free of charge for a certain time and maintains a service car which is used solely in furnishing such free repair service, may the dealer lawfully use dealer's number plates on such service car?"

2. "If a dealer agrees upon the sale of every vehicle that he will furnish repair service free of charge for a certain time and maintains a service car which he uses in furnishing such free repair service and also uses it in furnishing other repair service for which he receives pay, may the dealer lawfully use dealer's number plates on such car?"

3. "If a dealer agrees upon the sale of every motor vehicle that he will furnish repair service free of charge for a certain time and maintains a service car which he uses in furnishing such free service and also uses for the occasional transportation of motor vehicle parts, which he uses in his business, such transportation being from the railroad station to his salesroom or from his salesroom to a patron, a profit being made on the handling of these parts, may the dealer lawfully use dealer's plates on such service car?"

In answer to the questions negatively, the attorney general opines that to give any other construction to the law would permit practically an indiscriminate use of dealer's number plates dependent upon the desires and wishes of the owners of the plates rather than upon the regulations of the Motor Vehicle Commission and the provisions of the statute. "Service cars," wrote the attorney general, "are used to further the dealer's business purposes and are assumed the commercial nature of trucks."

Making "Lead" Pencils

To make the wooden tube in which the lead for a pencil is incased the manufacturer cuts out a board about seven inches long, the width of six pencils and as thick as half a pencil in diameter. With a machine he then shapes it into six semi-rounded or semi-hexagonal sections and grooves one side to hold the lead. When the lead is inserted the halves are glued together. The "lead" in a pencil is composed of graphite.

Food for Children

Child specialists inform us that between the ages of four and twelve years a very active child requires double the total calories of a very quiet child, and a moderately active child requires one-third more calories than the quiet child. Because of the demands incident to rapid growth all children require highly nourishing food.

DEATH BY VIOLENCE IS NATURE'S EDICT

Few Creatures of the Wild Pass Away Peacefully.

Violent deaths are the rule, not the exception, in nature's realm. Even those great Leviathans of the deep, the whales, are not immune, for they are subject to the attacks of a ferocious creature called the killer, one of the dolphins, which hunt in packs, slashing the chosen victim with their terrible jaws until it dies from exhaustion and loss of blood.

In temperate climates an extra hard winter causes many deaths, particularly among small birds and animals, and droughts levy a great toll in hot countries. Kenneth Dawson writes, in the Washington Post. The wild creatures have their epidemics, too. The rinderpest, or cattle plague, has in the past exterminated both domestic animals and the wild game over enormous tracts in Africa.

But for many of nature's creatures death comes swift and red. Even the great cats, the lions and tigers, are no exceptions. While in their prime they have few enemies, but when feeble with age, with claws and teeth worn down and useless, they fall victims to the hyenas and jackals which for years have fed on the leavings of the great beasts' kills.

Accidental deaths, too, are plentiful among the birds, beasts and fishes. Within the last few weeks two of the Cunard liners, the Scythia and the Berengaria, have each killed a whale by ramming it.

Not long ago a case was recorded of a swallow being killed by hitting an artificial fly on an angler's cast while it had been left hanging from the branches of a tree. Birds which swallow their prey whole, like the heron and curlew, are now and then choked by trying to gulp down too large a morsel. Fish die the same way, especially pike and trout, and the large catfish are sometimes fatally injured by the horns of an antelope they have attacked.

Some years ago I found a blackbird pierced by a long spike in the middle of a blackthorn bush. No doubt the bird had dashed in there to avoid the swoop of a hawk and had impaled itself. Birds which line their nests with horsehair or sheep's wool occasionally get entangled in these materials and are either hanged or die of starvation. Foxes are not infrequently caught in snares, and, although they break away, if the wire is drawn tight around the neck it will in time cut into the flesh and kill the luckless creature. Rats when frightened sometimes bolt into small pipes and become tightly wedged.

New Way to Hull Walnuts

An innovation in hulling black walnuts was introduced Sunday afternoon by two small boys near a walnut grove on a road a few miles south of Kansas City, Kan.

After gathering the nuts the boys scattered them over the road where it was narrow at a bridge approach. Passing motor cars did the hulling, thus saving the labor and stained fingers.

One motorist, driving a small car, stopped to talk with the boys, and the new scheme was outlined.

"Sure, we get our nuts hulled this way," one of the boys said. "We did have them down where the road was wider, but the cars turned out. So we had to move them here where the cars can't turn out. Bollton tires hull 'em best."—Kansas City Times.

The Celebration

"Heddy-dee!" called a motorist, who was not thoroughly pleased as to the way he should go. "Which is the road to my heaven? What is the edge of all that upsurge there on the hill-side? Are they celebrating the election at this late date or having a grand free-for-all battle?"

"I haven't said—jaw-wan—shoo," replied Cap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "Lecton has been over quite a spell, and as they're all Democrats, anyhow, I don't see why they're out much to celebrate. And as revenues and K's kidneys are in season any time you betch 'em, I reckon they're shouting up one or—jaw-wan—shoo—father, and I haven't an idea which."—Kansas City Star.

Morshairs and Snakes

The statement that if you place a morshair in a puddle of water it will turn into a snake is ridiculous on the face of it. Though apparently many people still believe it, it should be easy to demonstrate with a morshair. The fact that a hair or similar object placed in water has a tendency to wriggle and wiggle is a well-known fact.

BOBBED HAIR
STOWAWAY DONS
SAILOR'S GARBSmuggled Aboard U. S.
Freighter in Holland to Wed Ship's Cook.

New Orleans, La.—When Cornelia Vander Wiele, slender bobbed-haired blonde barmaid of Rotterdam, stowed away on the United States shipping board freighter West Ira, she and her lover failed to reckon with the energetic customs inspectors in New Orleans.

The customs inspectors found the feminine stowaway—and identified her despite her attire of male garments—and sent her to the immigration station. Notwithstanding the protests of P. W. Adams, chief cook of the steamship, that he wanted to marry her, the officials indicated they would send the girl back to Holland.

When Adams was in Rotterdam, he met and fell in love with the blonde girl. They wanted to get married, he said, but he did not have his birth certificate and there were other delays. So they decided they would come to America to be married.

Smuggled Girl Aboardship.

The girl donned men's clothing. Her blond hair was stuffed beneath a cap, and rough seamen's attire and heavy boots completed the attire. Under cover of night, she was smuggled into the cabin of Chief Cook Adams. Soon the voyage was started.

A day or two ago the West Ira slowly moved up the river here and to the side of the dock. Inspectors Abbot and Sabro began their systematic search for liquor. They came to the cook's cabin. It was locked. Adams was ordered to unlock the door.

Scarcely had he turned the key in the lock when a hurrying form flashed past the inspectors. They searched the cabin but found no liquor.

In the belief that "the man" who had run from the cook's cabin had liquor concealed on "his" person, the inspectors decided to question "him." "He" was found in the galley, busily washing dishes.

As they approached, the churning of the dish water became more violent. The inspectors peered under the rim of the cap, put it down low, so as to almost conceal the eyes. The secret was out.

Before Captain Rosamond, the girl and Adams told their story. They insisted that neither the captain nor any member of the crew had guilty knowledge of the plot.

Fervid Pleas Are Vain.

"We want to be married," said Adams. "Please don't send the girl back to Rotterdam. I'm an American, from Maine, and she'll be a citizen when we are married."

But the inspectors ordered them to go to the immigration station.

The "man" disappeared inside the cabin, but now as a young woman. She wore a dark blue skirt, a light blue waist. Her hair was hung back from her head, revealing bright blue eyes and a light complexion. Apparently she is about twenty-two years old.

At the immigration station, officials ruled the possibility that Adams may be charged with attempting to smuggle an alien into the United States.

Grandson of Historian
Offers Himself as Slave

Boston.—An advertisement headed "Slave," which appeared in newspapers under the head "Situations Wanted," led to discovery that Cuyler Grover Flint, a grandson of John Fiske, the historian, and son of Grover Flint, author, was the subject.

"Mike, twenty-four, (white) sound, intelligent, gentle; belonged to aristocratic family; leave by the year, $15,000," the advertisement read in part.

In the shadow of Harvard college, where his father was graduated and to which he was to have gone until the World war took him to France, young Flint said he spent $15,000 last year, but would be glad to hire himself out, by lease or otherwise, for $1,000 next year. Depending on an aunt, whose estate he managed, to leave him her fortune, he learned after her death that it was willed to a cousin, he said.

CROSS-WORD MANIA
BREAKS UP HOMESNeglected Cleveland Wives
Plan Divorces.

Cleveland.—Homes in this city are now threatened by cross-word puzzles. The innocent little white and black squares have fascinated so many husbands that legal aid organizations are being swamped with requests to solve the enigma or to start divorce proceedings.

This direful state of affairs was disclosed by the manager of one of the legal aid organizations, who said that his office was receiving an average of ten letters a day from wives who have to remain at home these evenings just because their husbands are suffering from "cross-word" puzzleitis.

All of the letters correspond in almost every detail. One of them is as follows:

"We were happy until recently. Then my husband became absorbed in cross-word puzzles. Since then he has had no time even to look at me or the children. He no more than gets his hat off than it is cross-word puzzles."

"If I talk to him he gets angry. If we go out for the evening he takes a magazine or newspaper with him and it is a cross-word puzzle."

"Morning, noon and night it is cross-word puzzles. It is breaking up our home, for I have no time for them. He will either have to give up cross-word puzzles and spend some time with his family or I will obtain a divorce."

Seeks X-Word in Cafe
Too Long, Lands in Jail

New York.—Patrolman Harry Wallach, communing within himself upon the chilly state of the atmosphere at 2 a. m., was summoned by Bolling F. Denham, proprietor of a restaurant at One Hundred Eleventh street and Broadway.

"Come at once," said Denham. "I have nuts in my restaurant."

"Why not?" asked the patrolman.

"These are not nuts that you eat," Denham explained. "These are nuts that sit around all night arguing about something, and I want them arrested. On four ham-and-egg sandwiches they cannot sit in my restaurant all night, can they?"

"Well, see," said Patrolman Wallach.

In the restaurant Wallach found Welch Nathan, who lives, when home, at 535 West One Hundred Tenth street, and three others. Pandemonium reigned.

"Boys, boys," said Patrolman Wallach, "How come?"

"Officer," said Nathan, eagerly. "Tell me at once. Do you know a word which means 'microscopic hairs' and has in it five letters?"

"See!" said Denham; "just what I told you. Nuts. And they've been here since before eleven o'clock, and here it is nearly two. Arguing about microscopic hairs! Nuts! On four ham-and-egg sandwiches they cannot do this in my restaurant."

Denham does not do cross-word puzzles. He insisted on an arrest, and Nathan later was sentenced to a day in jail for disorderly conduct.

Boy Lives With Heart

Philadelphia.—His heart pushed over to the right side, John Oglio, thirteen years old, of 69 Woodhill street, Long Island City, is reported on the road to recovery at Long Island College hospital, where he was taken after being shot accidentally while playing with a friend, "Patsy" Burro, on a vacant lot back of his home.

Physicians at first thought John would die, since X-ray pictures showed the .32-caliber bullet had entered his neck just above the breast bone and, after plowing through the left lung, shattered a rib, lodging in the chest wall beneath the left shoulder blade. The lung had collapsed and the cavity filled with blood, pushing the heart over to the right side.

Since it would have meant death to probe, the surgeons decided to leave the bullet in his chest, and also several pieces of lead broken off when the bullet struck a rib. Eventually the doctors believe the lung will heal and the heart will return to the left side.

Need Gas Mask

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Gas masks for night driving are proposed by motorists here, who assert that the crisp night air near Grand Rapids is constantly polluted by an apparent abundance of pollutants.

The skunks are blinded by automobile headlights and are often run down or assert themselves in getting out of the way of the car.

Farmers predict an abundance of "Japanese brook stick" and other fur of like designation on the markets this year.

Church Census
Begins Sunday

For several weeks the churches of the city have been preparing to take a religious or church census of Kingston. The entire city has been divided into districts and the captain and cantonniers are ready to begin their work Sunday afternoon. The main object is to ascertain the church preference of every family, and to turn this information over to the pastor or priest of their choice.

It is not the intent of the churches to be inquisitive but helpful, and therefore the questions to be asked are very simple. It is hoped the public will receive the cantonniers in the same kindly spirit in which they held from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 9.—The foreign exchange, stock and grain markets continued today the strong and aggressive forward movement which has been in progress with but very little interruption since Tuesday morning. After its opening at $4.78 1/2 demand sterling pushed forward all day and reached $4.79 1/2 shortly after the noon period.

Activity in the stock market lapsed after the first heavy influx of buying orders had been filled but price trends were constantly toward higher levels with the steel and oil stocks in the lead, and many of the high priced industrials and specialty stocks giving spectacular individual performance. Nash Motors jumped six points to 214; Fidelity Phoenix Fire Insurance 8 1/2 points to 164; Savage Arms 4 points to 90 1/2; Baldwin Locomotive 3 points to 126 1/2.

United States Steel led a brisk market in the steel stocks in the first hour, after which trading quieted down in this section of the market and a number of the railroad shares forged to the front. Chesapeake and Ohio got close to 98; Union Pacific to above 122; Southern Pacific to 107 1/2; and New York Central to above 123. Denver and Rio Grande continued its spectacular course, advancing nearly 5 points to 53 1/2.

Seas Roebuck rose to 162 1/2, put that stock in the highest position in the price list since 1920, and heavy buying was in order at the high prices. Montgomery Ward went above 50 for the first time in its history and Macy gained 3 1/2 points to 89. Woolworth was active around 125, about one point higher. Switching of speculative interest caused the usual declines in stocks which enjoyed a sharp rise of late but offerings were well absorbed and reactions did not go far. Grain and cotton markets were firm.

Drive for Muscle Shoals Vote

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 9.—Administration leaders launched a final drive in the senate today to dispose of Muscle Shoals legislation by tomorrow.

Having substituted the Underwood bill for the Norris government ownership plan, the senate had before it two other Muscle Shoals measures. These were the Wadsworth and Jones commission plans. Both were offered as substitutes for the pending Underwood bill.

The proposal of Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York, was to appoint a commission of five members, the secretaries of war and agriculture and three named by the president, to dispose of the $150,000,000 power and nitrate project. Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, would name a commission of three, the secretaries of war and agriculture and one appointed by the president, to investigate Muscle Shoals and report back next December recommendations for disposing of the property.

Many administration senators who supported the Underwood bill, announced that they would now vote for the Jones plan. Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican leader, predicted its passage by tomorrow. A change of only six votes from the total from the Underwood bill would enact the Jones measure.

Progressives, chafing under the 37 to 48 defeat given the Norris bill, said they would support the Jones measure as opposed to the Underwood bill.

Diagram That Introduces a New Field of Selectivity Into the Multi-Audi-Plex Circuit. Will Interest All Radio Fans.

By LEON W. BISHOP

Those who became interested in the multi-audio-plex circuit have spoken of the wonderful selectivity and volume on distant stations through tremendous local interference.

Here is a diagram that introduces a new field of selectivity into the multi-audio-plex circuit. Directions should be carefully followed in regard to the tuning coil T.C. Procure a four-inch dry cardboard tube. Use no shellac or any compound whatsoever on this tube. Wind this tube with 50 turns of No. 20 or 22 double cotton covered wire. A tap is taken at the fortieth turn, which is connected to the plus side of the tube filament and also is grounded. Starting from this fortieth grounded tap, tap every three turns until the fifty-fifth turn, which will leave five taps. This switch S, is connected to the aerial.

With this selective system, it is possible to connect in three, six, nine, twelve and fifteen turns in the antenna circuit. This under local interference, will enable you to tune out your local stations and still receive from distant points.

Connecting the Taps.
In connecting the taps, the wire may be cut and holes punched in the tube, and the wires drawn through these. By punching holes in the tube and drawing the wires through, you will make the winding much firmer and eliminate the use of shellac or any other kind of glue.

The variometer V may be of any standard make on the market. The grid condenser should be of the mica type and have a capacity of .00025 mfd. The grid leak should be anywhere from three to nine megohms, a nine megohm grid leak being used for local reception. Do not put on variable grid leaks. It is much better to have a spare grid leak, say for instance, a three megohm and a nine megohm and snap these in at will.

The variable condenser, VC, should be .0005 mfd., preferably of the 23 plate type of condenser. Here I might say, condensers that are advertised as having exceptionally low dielectric loss would be best applied in this circuit. The rheostat should be 20 ohms, and connected in the negative side of the A battery.

The best tube for use in this circuit is the UV201A, although the C901A, UV199 and C299 tubes may be used. The B battery should be from 38 to 45 volts, depending upon the tube characteristics.

The bypass condenser should be .002 mfd., and preferably of the mica type. Connecting the Circuit.
In connecting up the circuit, it is best to have the variable condenser on the left hand side of the panel, the variometer on the right hand side of the panel, the switch taps below in the center of the panel. The rheostat may be placed in the center, high on the panel. A panel 7 by 9 should be used. Shielding is of little avail, but the rotary plates of the variable condenser VC must be connected to the ground.

It must be remembered that the lead from the grid on the socket to the grid leak and condenser should not be more than one inch in length. The body capacity effect of this lead is the most critical of the set. The next lead is the one from the plate to the variometer. This should be kept as short as possible.

The A battery, AB, should be four dry cells in the case of the UV201A and C901A tubes, and three dry cells for the UV199 and C299 tubes. Although the switch points are only three turns apart, they make a vast difference in selective tuning.

In no case can there be more than 15 turns in the antenna circuit. Thus the chance of radiation is almost nil. Again I wish to warn against the use of shellac on the tuning coil T.C. This circuit may be amplified in the same manner as the multi-audio-plex circuit. The point gained in this circuit is selectivity and the practical elimination of reradiation. The circuit will be immediately noted for its wonderful quality reproduction.—New York Sun.

Series-Parallel Switch— Its Uses in Receiver

The series-parallel switch eliminates the necessity of changing of wires during a test of a circuit. It comes in very handy for a quick change-over from one circuit to another of the head phones. Another use for the series-parallel switch is found when it is used in connection with a battery charger and the battery for the set.

When the switch is in one position the battery is thrown to the charger circuit and when in the reverse direction the battery is connected to the set. The method shown in the accompanying diagram is used in connection with the honeycomb coil circuit. It is used in the primary part of the circuit to throw the condenser across the coil or in series with it.

The honeycomb coil circuit requires the use of such a switch in order to change from medium short waves to longer waves. The switching arrangement allows the use of a certain coil for a wide wavelength range.

An example of the series-parallel switch in honeycomb coil set is shown as follows: Suppose an L-C coil has been used in the primary to tune to amateur waves below 200 meters and there was an immediate need to go up on the higher wave length of the broadcast band to hear some particular program.

Ordinarily, for amateur work, the condenser would be in series with the coil, but the change would necessitate the condenser being put across the coil. The condenser in shunt with the coil boosts the wave length up without putting in a new coil.

This is a much easier method than hunting around for another primary coil and taking time to plug it into the circuit after removing the first coil from its primary plug. Not alone may this method be used in a honeycomb coil set, but may be used with any variable primary.

It is sometimes desirable to sharpen the tuning of a single-circuit set. This is accomplished by taking the series condenser out of the circuit and connecting it across the primary tap.

Poses Bigger Navy at Present

Future Needed to Put Navy Parity with Great Britain's is urged by President-General Board to Stop Airplanes.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Despite of admission that the navy has considerably below the 5-5-3 prescribed by the arms conference and despite the revelation that the British navy now outstrips the American navy in ships, gun range and speed, it appeared today that the navy is going to be done about at least for the present.

The bigger navy element is in the minority, against the determined opposition of President Coolidge and most of his cabinet members.

President Coolidge's opposition to expenditures at this time is on three major premises:

He is opposed to spending the money at a time when efforts are made to reduce taxes.

He is convinced that within a year there will be held either at home or abroad another arms conference which will accomplish further reduction in the world's navies.

He is unwilling to have the United States even appear to be engaged in competitive armament.

It will take approximately $2,000,000,000 expended over twenty years to put the navy on a parity with Great Britain and keep it there. This is the estimate of the naval board of the navy.

On the insistence of the bigger navy spokesmen, the administration is going to war with Great Britain?

He airplane as a big factor in the preparedness is about to be another elap at the hands of the navy general board. Within a week the general board will make public the findings of its investigation into the relative value of military naval craft. The findings will be that the battle ship is still the backbone of the fleet. Aircraft will be relegated to a purely auxiliary position, despite the claims which showed that the submarine could be sunk by aerial attack and despite the assertions of experts that they can "sink" battleships afloat.

Pirate's Paradise

Town Square in Basseterre, St. Kitts.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

"America's Riviera," the old Spanish main, including the shores of the lands and mainland of the Caribbean, is a peaceful land now, but only a few centuries ago it was the paradise of pirates. The sixteenth century privateers and pirates—fearless, erratic, adventurous spirits—though they turned the Caribbean waters into a veritable Spanish cockpit, at the same time discovered lands, developed the art of seamanship, and added greatly to the world's knowledge of natural history and geography.

Shortly after the discovery of America, Spain, at the height of her power, claimed all of this domain as her own, and trespassers were regarded as pirates. Though the richest half of Europe was then emptying gold into the coffers of Aragon and Castile, it is estimated that one-third of the imperial revenue came from Spanish colonies in the New World.

But Spain was not permitted to establish her sway in the Western hemisphere unchallenged. Both England and France were puissant rivals.

With the English seamen of the sixteenth century, who were gentlemen-adventurers swearing allegiance to Elizabeth, came French corsairs, Dutch seaborne, and nondescript bands of smugglers, slavers, traders and privateers to infest the West Indies.

This motley crew was followed by buccaniers in the seventeenth century, and by ordinary pirates in the eighteenth.

As a consequence, there is scarcely an island among the hundreds in the Caribbean that has not its story of these early adventurers, and many bits of their handiwork. There is not a stretch of coast 20 miles in length which does not have its story of buried treasure.

Buccaniers Were Tolerated.

There was practically no colony in the island-dotted Caribbean which had any scruples against allowing buccaniers to build, fit out, or repair their vessels in its harbors. Tortuga, off the northern coast of Haiti, and Jamaica were veritable pirate strongholds, while Martinique, Guadalupe, St. Kitts, and Barbados befriended them and encouraged their trade.

The home governments of France, England and the Netherlands found it good policy to countenance the buccaniers and to wink at some of their activities. The council of Jamaica even went so far in 1666 as to enumerate in its minutes 12 good reasons for granting commissions to privateers; for, this august body said, they furnished the island with necessary commodities at easy rates, bringing them corn, bullion, cocoa, logwood, indigo, and cochineal; helped poor planters by buying the provisions they had for sale; furnished work for various kinds of artisans; brought slaves to cultivate the plantations; furnished a navy for the island; and often, in intercepting Spanish messengers, furnished the governor of the colony with valuable information.

The nursery of all the English and French colonies in the West Indies was St. Christopher, or St. Kitts, as it is now often called, one of the Leeward Islands, half way between Porto Rico and Dominica. It was discovered by Columbus on his second voyage to America and called by him after the saint whose name the great discoverer himself bore.

Though today almost every available inch of its deep and fertile soil is cultivated, St. Kitts is poverty-stricken, owing to overpopulation. Its 70 square miles are encircled by a good road, and the heart of the island is made up of a series of peaks broken by wild ridges and ravines, which culminate in a great extinct volcano towering more than 4,000 feet above the sea, in whose crater there lies a perpetual lake.

No place can claim a fuller measure of pirate lore than Tortuga, a small island located opposite Port-au-Prince, off the northern coast of Haiti. It is heavily wooded, rugged, and sparsely inhabited, and for three centuries it has been the rendezvous of pirates and privateers. It is the only place in the Caribbean where the history of piracy is so vividly and so continuously remembered.

Other spot in the Antilles. For 80 years after the buccaniers were driven from St. Kitts it was such a stronghold for the "brethren of the sea," that even the mighty king of Spain, with all his ships and men, could not break it up.

Tortuga the Headquarters.

In its prime, when it was the headquarters of the buccaniers, this sink of the West Indies was spoken of as "the common refuge of all sorts of wickedness and the seminary," though it was admitted that the outlaws themselves lived together in orderly fashion, without bolts or bars on their doors.

"Big" Munn Now Wrestling Champ

"Strangler" Lewis Lost Heavyweight Title to Former Nebraska Football Star—Lewis Seriously Injured.

By Telegram to The Freeman
Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 9.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, may never wrestle again as a result of injuries received last night when he lost his title to Wayne "Big" Munn, former University of Nebraska football star.

Dr. Terry E. Lilly, who was with Lewis at St. Luke's Hospital until 4 o'clock this morning, said that the former champion has probably fractured two vertebrae at the base of the spine. Dr. Lilly said he would not make a definite statement as to Lewis's injuries until he had further examined the wrestler later today. He based his first statement on a hurried examination of X-ray pictures taken last night.

In a contest filled with more thrills than any title match in years, the 27-year-old Nebraskan took the title from Ed "Strangler" Lewis last night, despite claims of Lewis's manager that the stranger should have been awarded the match when his opponent tossed the former champion out of the ring on to the cement floor after the first fall.

Lewis is in a hospital today with a sprained back.

Dazed and evidently injured by the fall, Lewis was taken to his dressing room and it was a half hour before he was able to resume the match.

He was then virtually helpless before the towering Nebraskan and Munn threw him with ease.

Munn took the first fall with a body and crotch hold, his favorite. It kept Lewis groaning on the mat for several seconds and he retired for twenty minutes afterward.

Two minutes after they were in the ring for the second time, Munn picked the champion up, lifted him over the ropes and sent him crashing to the mat from which Lewis rolled on to the cement floor.

Billy Sandow, the ex-champion's manager, rushed at Referee Walter Bates demanding Lewis be given the match on a foul. Bates ruled Munn be penalized one fall.

The crowd, thoroughly partisan, booed Lewis, although they knew he was hurt.

Accident States Munn.

In an exclusive statement to International News Service this morning Munn declared the throwing of Lewis out of the ring was an accident, which the referee would have seen, had he been on either side of instead of behind the two men. "I just got a crotch-hold and ball Nelson on Lewis, which I had been working for all evening," said the new champion. "I had lifted Lewis over my head to throw him to the mat when he broke the hold and in using his left arm, pushed himself out of my arms and out of the ring."

"I don't think that anyone who knows me would believe I would attempt a deliberate foul or try to throw an opponent on to a cement floor."

Munn called Lewis's hospital twice after midnight and intends to visit Lewis today if the former champion's physicians will permit.

REAL FIGHTING LOOKED FOR IN TONIGHT'S BOUTS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 9.—Local boxing has become so encrusted with the old championship hokum lately that it is a distinct relief to chronicle the fact that no titles are involved in tonight's flaccid affair at Madison Square Garden. It really looks as if there would be some fighting this evening.

After some of the alleged title tilts that have been inflicted on the populace lately, it is pertinent to inquire at any box office: "Is this a championship match or will there be some fighting?"

There will be no applause about the three ten round specials at the Garden tonight. The principals are all well known, but they claim no titles.

Topping the card are Jack Bernstein and Tommy O'Brien. The other two numbers will show four good youngsters in the bantamweight division. The semi-final will feature Harold Smith of Chicago and Jackie Seider of Brooklyn. Nat Pinus, a graduate from the six round class goes over the longer route with Bushey Graham.

The Young Hornets of East Kingston defeated the Young Studebakers Thursday evening at East Kingston by a 25 to 22 count. The pass work of the Hornets baffled the hosts and their defense work in the final period, allowing but one field, was outstanding in the victory.

On Monday evening at the East Kingston court, the Hornets will play the Ponchockie Celtics. The Hornets are desirous of meeting other teams.

Ingram May Succeed Folwell.

One of Derby Favorites
Master Charlie, the colt that won the Kentucky Jockey club stakes at Churchill Downs, the result of which will automatically make him one of the winter book favorites for next year's Kentucky derby, cost his owner, William Daniels, the Chicago live stock commission merchant, $1,000. This season he earned $95,025 in purse money for his owner.

Bred in England by J. Musker and the get of Lord Archer-Bachelors Choice, the colt was sent to the United States as a yearling with a consignment of other colts and fillies to be sold at the Saratoga auctions. Daniels, looking for likely racing talent at a reasonable price, visited the sale paddocks and bid Master Charlie and two other yearlings in, paying $1,000 for each of them.

French Amused at Giants

From reports the French appear to be somewhat nonplussed that the New York "Giants" have among their ranks such small men as F. F. Frisch and A. N. Nehf. They evidently expected to see all the players duck their heads when they came out of the railroad station. This rather amusing idea makes one wonder if, should the Washington Senators go abroad, would the French expect to see some of America's former congressmen or would they plan to receive a tribe of Indians if the Boston Braves took a notion to travel.

Conan Doyle's assertion that everyone works in the next world will probably come as a great shock to many of our golf players.

Nothing developed during the last season to alter the standing of Dexter and Edith Cummings as the best brother-and-sister golf team in this country.

Information obtained from the coast intimates that Sparrow, Boston's new player from Calgary, is a fine player when he tends strictly to the game.

Fort Sam Houston is to have a golf course of its own, and work of laying out the first nine holes of the new course near Salado creek will begin in a few days.

By going through another season without missing a game, Everett Scott, shortstop of the Yankees, increased his remarkable run of consecutive games to 1,209.

Jack Coffey, former minor league manager and at present the baseball coach at Fordham university, has been named up by Jack Hendricks as a scout for the Reds.

ARMORY FIVE TO PLAY ST. MARY'S

Tonight at St. Mary's Hall the St. Mary's Juniors will play the Armory Five. In what promises to be a good game of basketball. The soldier boys have a fast team, and the Juniors will have to step lively to beat them. The soldiers will probably use Wolf, Hoard, Van Buren, Dixon, Colvin and Gilts, while the young Saints will line-up as usual with Moseley, Boye, Gilday, Joyce and Long.

On January 14 the same teams will meet again at the armory court.
